

Have One Doctor

No sense in running from one doctor to another. Select the best one, then stand by him. Do not delay, but consult him in time when you are sick. Ask his opinion of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds. Then use it or not, just as he says.

We publish our formulae. We banish alcohol from our medicines. We urge you to consult your doctor.

Always keep a box of Ayer's Pills in the house. Just one pill at bedtime, now and then, will ward off many an attack of biliousness, indigestion, sick headache. How many years has your doctor known these pills? Ask him all about them.

The Adventurous Feline.
"Hello, is this the electric-light company? Do you take cats down?—yes, cats!—She is on a pole, and crying just terribly. She must have been up there a week, for she's just as thin!—What?—Oh, this is Fifty-ninth avenue. A big dog is barking at her, too, and she—what street? Why, I don't know! I don't live on this street, do I?—Oh, yes, of course!—Bristol street, the druggist says.—Oh, will you?—You are so good! And a man just said she is playing with the transformer and might short-circuit herself, or something. Well, thank you very much. I am so glad.—Good-by!"—Success Magazine.

Pie.
There are many people who never eat bread, but always eat pie, and are healthy. There is scarcely one ingredient in either of these articles that is not in the other, and yet tradition praises bread and condemns pie. As a matter of fact, no longer is pie what it was 50 years ago. The pie which nourished Abraham Lincoln, Ben Franklin, the Adamases, Sam and John; the pie about which Longfellow wrote, which Emerson ate three times a day, pie that was once an inspiration, a symphony, a ripe achievement and the most sacred performance of a patriotic duty, such pie is no longer eaten—not even in New England.

Not Exempt.
An evangelist was exhorting his hearers to flee from the wrath to come. "I warn you," he thundered, "that there will be weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth!" At this moment an old woman in the gallery stood up. "Sir," she shouted, "I have no teeth."

"Madam," returned the evangelist, severely, "teeth will be provided."—Success Magazine.

DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION.

Quickly Cures Rheumatic Pains, Also Splendid System Builder.
Go to any good prescription druggist and get the following and mix them. If he does not have these ingredients he will get them from his wholesale house.

"One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla, and one ounce Toris compound. Add these to a half pint of first-class whiskey, and use a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime. The bottle must be well shaken each time." This simple remedy is one of the most effective known. The restorative action will be felt after the first few doses.

A Deal That Fell Through.
"Baron Fowch was rather exacting as to the dot."

"That wasn't what broke the engagement," answered Mr. Cunrox. "I don't object to seeing a young man look out for his interests. But when he applied for a cash advance in order to buy an engagement ring, I must say it struck me as unbusiness-like."

English Difficult to Pronounce.
The difficulty of English for strangers does not lie in its orthography, but in its pronunciation. Abroad, people will constantly say that they can read and write English readily while unable to utter a word or to understand a word of the spoken language; as, of course, vice versa, a great many English and Americans can read and write French long before they can understand, or make themselves understood; the other languages are just as difficult for them to pronounce as English is for others. The only difference is that English stands alone with its system or lack of system, of pronunciation. When a Frenchman knows how to write German, he is at the same time able to speak the language, if not beautifully, at least so as to be understood; the same holds for a German speaking French.—Prof. Albert Schinz, in the North American Review.

Improve Our Waterways.
While peanut politicians have bickered and cackled, while hundreds of millions have been frittered away in happy-go-lucky improvements of waterways, the greatest nation in the world has been choked by its railroads. These railroads have ruled us and plundered us, only to fail us in time of need. Wheat has actually rotted under the snow for want of cars. Yet all the time water has been running down hill, straight from producing areas to consuming centers. We must have a comprehensive plan that will make all our cities seaports. Such a plan will call for bold men with startling ideas, and for billions of money; but it means a new America. We shall then be able to feed the world without paying six times too much for the carriage of the food that we send to the world. "Squeeze the water from between the rails," says Mr. Hough, in Success Magazine, "and let it run between the banks." We can do all this just so soon as we can learn to think nationally.

A Town of Fresh Surprises.
Melissen is a town of crooked streets that wind about delightfully in its depths and suddenly climb the heights on each hand—a town with a fresh surprise of architecture, of costume or of landscape at every turn. One is constantly finding some landing whence ancient walled steps shoot up on the one hand to the burg and down on the other hand to the river.—From Robert Haven's Schaeffer's "Romantic Germany," in Century.

Taking into consideration the proportionate weight, the wing of a bird is twenty times stronger than the arm of a man.
